GOOD-BYE

Goodbye to you.
Who helped me grow
and watched me day to day,
This school's been just great for me
and helped me on my way.
You helped me learn to understand
the many things I'll face.
You taught me things
I'd never learn
in any other place.
Now there's one thing
I'll say to you
that means an awful lot.
And that one thing
is "Thanks to you",
you will not be forgot!

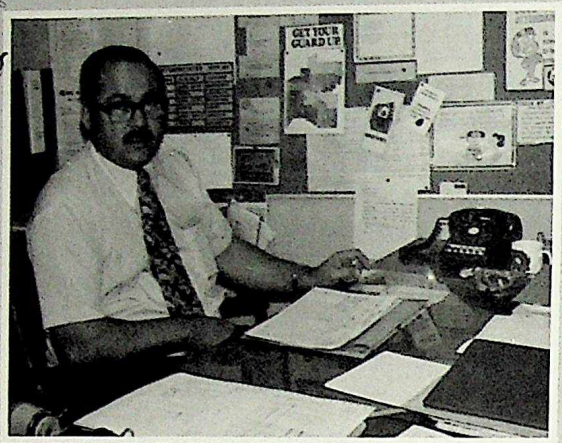
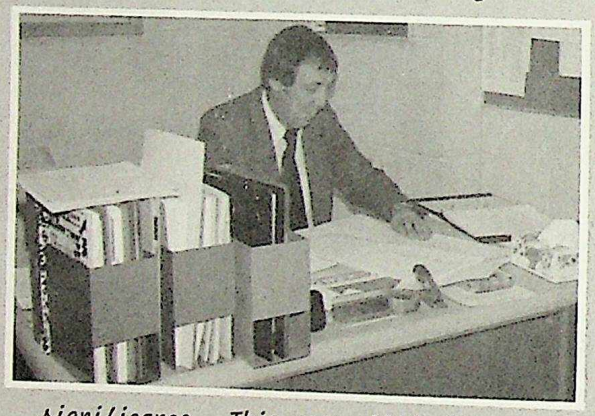
Principal's Message



Today people from all walks of life are talking about the deplorable conditions in public schools over the breakfast table, at public luncheons, at social gatherings ... Anxieties are ubiquitous, hovering over fathers, mothers, students, administrators, and teachers like dark, ominous clouds. If morale has ever been lower in public education, few people alive today know or remember when.

Education's detractors have become so numerous that what they say almost has become the conventional wisdom. They are saying that students can't read, schools are unsafe, test scores are down, and teachers don't care. And yet, someone must be doing something right. More books are being written, published, and read than ever before. We have booming computers and electronic industries; planes fly; super-highways are the rule rather than the exception; and we take for granted the miracles of modern medicine, instant world-wide communication, and shots to the moon, Jupiter, and beyond. Someone must have learned something, and more than 90 percent of people went to public schools. In spite of all the criticism that has been both justly and unjustly leveled against it, the system of public education in the last hundred years has undertaken and largely succeeded in accomplishing the most massive formal schooling effort in the history of mainkind. The system has been instrumental in producing the most literate and well-informed people on earth.



ASSISTANT PRINCIPAL'S MESSAGE

As this year draws to an end, students may want to identify key events or moments which can serve as historical markers in their life line. Students would thus be able to recall and remember events from their junior high school days by associating them with out-of-school happenings. The event that will no doubt serve as a historical marker to most students is itself of historical significance. This year, 1980, Albertans celebrate 75 years as a province in the Canadian Confederation. Students will find this a valuable historical marker with which to associate memorable events from their teenage and junior high school days. The way it was will without doubt be told and retold for many years. Numerous social, scholastic and athletic events will enrich the story as it will be told by this year's students. Each student's version will be colored by individual perception of what was the most important event of his school year. All, however, will remember that it happened on the eve of Alberta's 75th Birthday Party--and they were there and they will say "This is the way it was in 1980..."

THEN AND NOW

At last, a chance to discuss the ever present dilemma of "the grass is always greener over the age barrier syndrome." You know, we've all gotten the rundown at least a few times from our parents. Now, don't get me wrong, I'm sure that they got the same from their parents, and their's before them, and so on, but I'm more concerned with our lifestyles right now.

To make sure that you know what I'm talking about, I'll give you a classic example. Place your mother behind this quote, "Be glad you even have that, when I was a kid ...." Strike a familiar tune? I bet I did, like last Thursday when you said, "Now what am I going to do? There's nothing on T.V. tonight." Somebody was bound to come back with, "Be glad you have television, when I was a kid all we had was radio."

Do they think we enjoy watching Mrs. Olsen attempt to create caffeine addicts out of each and every one of us? Do we derive pleasure from seeing the "Fruit of the Loom Guys" snap superband waistbands at us from every direction?

And then there's that annoying, "I had to walk six miles in freezing weather to get to school each day." Somehow, I can't picture even them sitting in a crowded, stuffy school bus with ear-to-ear grins on their faces.

Funny thing though, through some unexplained manner, I can hear myself some thirty years from now telling my own children, "You should be thankful for your own teleporter, in my day we had to travel by plane!"

Oh, how I loathe that moment.

DEAR DADDY

There was a time
As I told it, the sun would shine
If only you'd go.
But then my love I just couldn't show.
And now that you're gone
I need your shoulder, more than ever to cry on.
I used to think you were so mean,
Always trying to keep me tidy and clean.
But now I realize,
It was just your love in disguise
There's not a day that passes by
That I don't want to sit down and cry.
There isn't enough hours in a day
For me to wish you hadn't gone away.
And I know it was wrong
For me to wish you were gone,
But I was only a kid.
Now I feel so stupid.
But that's not why
I sit here and cry.
My love I want to share
But no one seems to care.
What should I do?
You expect a rhyme?
I'm sorry but there just isn't time.
For now I must sleep
With my thoughts to keep,
Cause you're so far away
And I just can't seem to say
How much I really do love you.
Good-nite Daddy.
